

Editors Feel Party Machine Candidates To Triumph

By Leonard Randolph

Party "machine" candidates will sweep Tuesday's State primary.

That's the way a majority of Pennsylvania's working newspaper editors see it right now.

Many of the editors were attending the weekend Pennsylvania Press Conference at University Park.

In conversations with them this is the way their opinions shape up:

The Dave Lawrence-George Leader ticket is "sure to win" the Democratic contest.

Reading pretzel manufacturer Art McGonigle will be the Republican nominee "by quite a margin."

Harold E. Stassen "had a chance" until about two weeks ago in some areas of the state; does not have now.

William Livengood has "run too many times"; doesn't have much "steam" left anymore.

Newsweekmen differ in marked degree on a couple of points. Half a dozen, from various sections of the state, said they think Livengood is still powerful as a vote-getter. Four also said he had their votes.

In past elections, Livengood has cut down heavily on the votes given to party machine-picked candidates.

But news editors believe that Livengood has done less front-line spadework this time; seems to be sitting back, relying on his past success in running as an "independent."

The real fight, they think, is between McGonigle and Stassen for the Republican nomination.

Because the "machine" is with him, they think it's McGonigle all the way.

"Sometimes we lose sight of the fact that, like it or not, the 'machine' still controls votes in most Pennsylvania counties," one editor said.

"Anybody who says it doesn't is politically naive. Maybe stupid would be a better word."

"I haven't talked to anybody — up till now — who thinks Stassen is going to win," another one said.

"Stassen's got everything going against him," a third one said. "He's not a native. That means quite a bit to some people around this state. He's been mixed up in national politics. That makes his running for a State office look like he's been kicked downstairs."

"Most people seem to think he's just running for Governor so he can control the State delegation at the 1960 nominating convention," another chipped in.

A few — and there are only a couple, apparently, in the state — feel that Stassen has a "chance." But it's an "outside" chance, they say.

"Until McGonigle hit the road a month ago, a lot of people around our county seemed interested in Stassen," one said. "But the interest is gone now. People don't even talk about it," one editor said.

Ironically, a majority of those questioned feel that Stassen would be the "best candidate" the GOP could put up. A number also lean toward Livengood.

Almost without exception, the editors seem to feel that McGonigle is the Republican party's weakest candidate. They feel he is a "sincere man." They feel he is an "excellent businessman." They feel he is a "better public speaker now than he was six months ago."

But they do not feel he can win the November election — IF the Democratic candidate is Lawrence.

And they're pretty certain the Pittsburgh mayor will win the nomination.

Only one editor questioned seemed to feel that Lt. Gov. Roy Furman will make inroads into the votes given to the Lawrence-Lawrence ticket.

A wire service man took a purely professional attitude toward the whole thing:

"I don't think anybody stands a chance against 'the machine' in either party. They've got too much control on the township and county levels."

"But I'd be happy as hell to see Stassen get it."

"That would be the story of the year."

The Weather

Penns.—Scattered showers ending during morning followed by clearing this afternoon. Cooler and rather windy today. Fair and cooler tonight and Tuesday. High today in 70s.

ONLY ONE thing is certain about tomorrow's primary: Democrats will vote for Democrats and Republicans will vote for Republicans.

Right there the prophet halts if he wants to retain his honor.

Nearly all the "hot news" in tomorrow's local election will deal with local candidates.

There is a lot of interest in the Lawrence-Furman fight or in Harold Stassen's running struggle for the Republican ticket's top spot against Arthur T. McGonigle.

But in Stroudsburg, Brodheadville, Marshalls Creek, Cresco and Meisertown the real interest will be in fights for party chairmanships.

Republicans — accustomed in recent years to watching Democrats fight their backyard battles on the front porch — are getting a taste of it themselves this time.

The local Republican organization has been sharply split by the fight for its chairmanship. On one side are lined up supporters of long-time party chairman, B. K. Williams, an East Stroudsburg businessman. On the other: Those who are fighting for the election of Gerald Snyder, a teacher, also of East Stroudsburg.

Lengthy Service

Williams has been GOP chairman since 1945. Snyder has been Second Ward committeeman from his borough and is now serving in his second year as State committeeman.

Pivotal issue in the present campaign has been a charge by the Snyder group that Williams had previously told party powers that he did not intend to run again. Later, they charge, Williams changed his mind.

more more more more more...

The basic controversy in the Republican campaign has developed into a "youth vs. age" matter. Williams has been around a good many years and the party needs new leadership, Snyder's backers say. The Williams camp counters with the argument that the party needs mature leadership and Snyder is too inexperienced to give it.

Although there has been less broadside newspaper advertising carried on in their party battle, the Democrats still have a tough intra-party split on their hands. It started off as a three-way slugfest. Now it's narrowed down to two men. But it's still a no-holds-barred contest.

Rank-and-file Democrats will vote tomorrow for one of two men named "John."

It will either be John Schimmel or John Brislin.

Analogink

Schimmel is a general store operator in Analogink. He is also State inspector of weights and measures. In his native Stroud Township he served on the school board. He later became a member of Stroud Union School Board when the larger unit was formed. Brislin lives at Stroudsburg RD 3. He was formerly chairman of the party in Monroe County. In 1954 he waged an unsuccessful fight to become State senator from the 14th District. The present election marks his re-emergence as a county-wide political figure.

Central issues in the Brislin-Schimmel struggle have emerged as matters of "power politics." Brislin's supporters allege that Schimmel is a hand-picked candidate of a minority in the party. Schimmel's linemen say that Brislin's group seeks to split the party wide open.

Third man in the Democratic battle, at first, was Van D. Yetter Jr., Marshalls Creek farm implement business owner.

At the last minute, however, Yetter withdrew from the three-way race to devote his full time to campaigning for nomination as Assemblyman. He is unopposed.

But in November Yetter faces incumbent Rep. Hanford Cleveland. It promises to be quite a fight.

It was Cleveland who upset Yetter's bid for reelection to the State Assembly in 1956. Yetter had served one term in the House then.

Cleveland is his party's only nominee for the Assembly post. This time he's seeking reelection after one term.

There is only one other county race at stake in tomorrow's voting.

Unopposed

Republicans will be asked to choose between Graydon Praetorius, Saylorsburg (Hamilton Township) and Clifford F. Heller, Stroudsburg for State Committee-man.

U. S. Recovers Nose Cone From Jupiter

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Another missile age milestone was passed yesterday when the Army launched a thundering Jupiter rocket through space and recovered its elaborately equipped nose cone in the Atlantic Ocean 4½ hours later.

It marked the first time that a full scale nose cone — the heart of a ballistic missile — had been retrieved intact after apparently functioning perfectly during its flight.

The Defense Department announced in Washington that a preliminary evaluation indicated the re-entry test was a complete success.

Jupiter, an intermediate range weapon, surged aloft from the nation's missile test center with an ear-splitting roar at 12:06 a.m. Its fiery ascent illuminated the Florida coast for miles around.

Mission

The mission was to prove the warhead of a lightning-fast ballistic missile can withstand the intense friction when it cuts back from space through the earth's atmosphere on the final leg of its trip on target.

The nose cone, which would shield a nuclear warhead under operational conditions, is traveling 9,000 m.p.h. when it encounters the severe atmospheric heat.

The test should give the Army a final answer to the Jupiter re-entry problem. It was solved in part last August when a four foot scale model space cone was recovered intact.

The cone was displayed to the American public by President Eisenhower during a television speech on the status of U.S. missile progress.

It was reported unofficially that the 68-foot Jupiter traveled more than 1,600 miles along the South Atlantic test range before the nose cone hit its predetermined impact area.

Waiting near the spot in shark-infested waters were Navy ships, planes and frogmen.

The Defense Department said Army and Navy observers aboard the auxiliary submarine rescue ship Escape spotted the twisting white nose cone as it plunged into the depths.

The blunt nose cone carried a special load of equipment designed to aid recovery operations. Included were parachutes, colored balloons, signal lights, dye marks and sharp repellent.

The cone, which beeped out signals to tracking stations along the route as it soared through space, was hoisted aboard the Escape minutes after it plummeted into the ocean.

This was the first Jupiter IIRRM launching in five months, but it appeared to go without a hitch.

Record To Post Returns Of Election

ELECTION returns will be posted in front of The Daily Record office tomorrow night as fast as the results are received in the news room from the Court House and over the Associated Press wires.

No returns will be available until after the polls close at 9 p.m.

The illuminated bulletin board on which the returns are to be posted will be placed across the main door leading to the business offices, on the Lenox St. side of the building.

Interested spectators are invited to congregate on the blacktop driveway and watch the returns as they are put on the board. There is plenty of parking space on Broad and Lenox Sts. adjacent to the newspaper building.

A complete roundup of the election, covering both Democratic and Republican primaries in Monroe County and throughout the state, will be carried in Wednesday morning's Daily Record.

Middle East Situation Causes Alarm

LONDON (AP)—Growing alarm was evident in Britain yesterday that the West is heading for another severe setback in the Middle East, and the Americans, to a large extent, are being blamed.

An outcry has come from influential politicians and newspapers of all political hues — left to right — for what they call a unified policy and realistic approach to rising Arab nationalism.

The crisis confronting France at home and in Algeria and the Lebanon riots have only brought into the open again a worry long nagging diplomatic quarters in this capital.

Lord Salisbury, 64, elder statesman of the British Conservative Party, delivered a warning in the House of Lords last week that "slowly but surely the balance of power is being swung against the West." Salisbury said it was time the Western nations know what American foreign policy was — especially in the Middle East.

Same Position

"After all, the United States today occupies almost the same position in the western bloc as Russia does in the eastern bloc."

Lord Salisbury's views carry strong weight among a Tory bloc that supports the government of Prime Minister Macmillan. Salisbury favors a firm and tough British foreign policy. He supported the Suez invasion and walked out of Macmillan's cabinet after Britain released Archbishop Makarios from exile in the Cyprus dispute.

Aneurin Bevan, foreign affairs spokesman for Britain's Labor Party, said the West must learn to deal with the new forces of Arab nationalism.

The Conservative Sunday Times was critical of the Eisenhower Doctrine for the Middle East and declared editorially:

"Its inadequacy is once more being shown in the Lebanon crisis. It is a military prescription for a political disorder, a sticking plaster on the skin to mend an internal lesion."

The Eisenhower Doctrine offered military aid to any country threatened by Communism by an outside power.

BIG NEWS FOR BOBBY — Daily Record "Family Fare" editor Bobby Westbrook walked off with some top honors at the Pennsylvania Women's Press Assn. meeting in University Park Saturday. She was named Northeast PWPA director and won second place in writing contest for state. With Bobby, at left, are new PWPA president Gene Brislin, Scranton Tribune, shaking hands with winner; Pat Hinton, Altoona Mirror; Naomi Woolever, Williamsport Sun-Gazette, new vice president; Mary Jayn Woge, Sharon Herald, 1959 contest chairman and Pat English, Erie Daily Times, state secretary.

Editor Of 'Family Fare' Honored By Newswomen

By Leonard Randolph

BOBBY WESTBROOK, The Daily Record's "Family Fare" page editor was named a top winner in a writing contest for newswomen this weekend.

Mrs. Westbrook was also elected Northeast District director of the Pennsylvania Women's Press Assn. The PWPA sponsored the writing contest.

Winner of a second place award in the PWPA competition was Mrs. Westbrook's survey of local women's reaction to President Eisenhower's "Buy Now" formula to offset the business recession.

As soon as the President's advice had been given, Bobby set out to check up on the local housewife.

She asked a series of questions: Is the present spending pattern in your family normal? Is the economic status of your family normal? Have you bought your new Easter outfit yet?

Answers to the 20 phone calls, made at random from the phone directory, formed the nucleus of a story which was given top play on the "Family Fare" page on Saturday, March 29.

It was headlined: "County's Housewives Taking Ike's Advice; Spending Normal; But Spring Clothes Late." The Record also ran a front page "box" calling attention to the special "Family Fare" article, Saturday at University Park.

Mrs. Westbrook received the second place award from the hands of Pat Hinton, Altoona Mirror woman's editor and director of the 1958 contest. In making the award, Miss Hinton noted that the Stroudsburg newswoman had been a "consistent" winner in PWPA writing contests.

The 1958 award is the fourth received by Mrs. Westbrook in the past six years. In 1952 her local column, "Just Between Us," won first place in that category. In 1953 her feature article on the newly-formed Day Care Training Center won first place in its division.

She was also named runner-up to the grand prizewinner as "Newswoman of the Year" in the 1953 competition.

Until this year, she had not submitted entries again in the State contest.

As Northeast Director of the PWPA, Mrs. Westbrook will handle administrative activities for the organization in this area. Newspapers included are those in Carbon, Wayne, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Lycoming and Pike counties.

Across the Mediterranean, Gaullist leader Jacques Soustelle told a cheering flag-waving throng in Algiers yesterday to fall in with the army to save France. A rightist military regime has taken over the Algerian government.

Julius Moch, stern new interior minister, denounced the committees of public safety established in Algeria.

"Irresponsible committees have usurped public power," Moch said in a radio speech to the nation. "Some persons have set themselves up against the nation's unity and against the republic. The fate of the republic is at stake."

Moch, who gives the orders to the thousands of reinforced police, called for the strict execution of all directives.

De Gaulle Arrives For Conference

PARIS, Monday (AP) — A giant strike threatened Paris yesterday with the appearance of Gen. Charles De Gaulle for a news conference that may spell out his terms for taking powers.

The strike call was issued by the communist-led General Confederation of Labor.

It asked all its members and other workers in the Seine Department (Paris region) to stage a sitdown strike at 3 p.m., the hour of De Gaulle's news conference, and be ready to reply en masse "to any attempt at a fascist demonstration."

Premier Pierre Mitterrand's government, seeking to suppress all demonstrations, was caught in the middle.

Mobilized Police

Hundreds of mobilized police reserves were called out to strengthen the government's hand in dealing with the political turmoil sweeping the nation. Thousands will be on guard in Paris streets throughout the day.

The Labor Confederation asked workers to assemble in shops and factories to demonstrate a resolve "to defend the republic."

65 Perish In Crash Of Plane

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — A Belgian airliner coming in for an emergency landing with a bad engine smashed through a building at Casablanca's Cazes Airport yesterday and exploded in a tower of flame. Sixty-five persons, including at least eight children, perished.

Four passengers escaped by plunging through a hatchway seconds before the Sabena Airlines four-engine DC8B blew up.

Brussels

Forty-one of the dead passengers were Belgians, most of them returning to the Belgian Congo after vacations in their homeland and visits to the World Fair in Brussels. The others were seven Britons, five Portuguese, one Dutch, one German and one Swiss. A British family of five and a Belgian family of five perished together.

The plane took off from Brussels with 54 passengers and nine Belgian crewmen. Six more passengers boarded the craft at Lisbon. The plane was bound for Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo. Sabena's manifest listed no Americans aboard.

On the Democratic side, Pittsburgh Mayor David L. Lawrence, 68, appeared a heavy favorite to coast in for his party's nomination for governor to succeed 40-year-old George M. Leader.

Furman Camp Confident Of Victory Over Lawrence

LT. GOV. Roy E. Furman will win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination by a 50,000 to 75,000-vote majority, his campaign manager predicted last night in Harrisburg.

In a telephone conversation with Robert Hulbert, a member of the Monroe County Furman-for-Governor Committee, Clyde H. Smith said the great strength for the Wayneburg candidate is expected to come from up-state counties and the Pittsburgh area.

This forecast is contrary to some reports which said the opposition candidate, David L. Lawrence, was favored to carry the Pittsburgh district.

Smith also told Hulbert that Lt. Gov. Furman based his confidence in victory on his opposition to any wage tax, a new RFC to help small industry and an accelerated program to rush construction of the Keystone Shortway.

Ives Hopeful Of Reform

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) said last night that if Congress can skip partisan politics chances are good for approval of the first major labor reform legislation since the 1947 Taft-Hartley Act.

Ives, senior Republican on the Senate Rackets Investigating committee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), said responsible union leaders are offering now to cooperate on "reasonable labor legislation" for the first time in a decade.

Such legislation, he said in a radio broadcast for New York State stations, would "stop shenanigans in this field" exposed by the extended Senate hearings.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Furious fighting raged yesterday in Tripoli, north Lebanese port city where rioters burned a U. S. library nine days ago. At least 60 persons were reported killed.

It was the bloodiest scrap of the internal warfare that has been shaking this tiny west Mediterranean republic. Supporters and foes of pro-Western President Camille Chamoun have engaged in daily clashes. Chamoun has blamed interference from the United Arab Republic and U. A. R. Elmer Davis, News Analyst, Succumbs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Elmer Davis, 68, writer, news analyst and head of the government's World War II Office of Information, died yesterday.

Death occurred at George Washington University Hospital where the veteran radio commentator was taken after suffering a stroke March 17. Bronchial pneumonia set in later.

The white-haired native of Aurora, Ind., had not been very active since 1953 when he suffered a heart attack.

Davis was one of 150 self-styled liberals who founded the Americans for Democratic Action in 1947. One of his last public statements on the subject was made in a message to the ADA a year ago in which he said:

"What was only a government in exile 10 years ago is today a fighting force in the best traditions of American liberalism."

Stassen Shows Confidence In Election

HAROLD E. Stassen was confident yesterday.

Stassen said the "outlook" is "favorable" for his candidacy all across the State.

In a telegram to Edwin Kravitz, a local chairman of the Pennsylvanians for Stassen, the independent Republican candidate for the governor's nomination said:

"My warm personal thanks to you and your associates for your superb support."

"Favorable"

"The outlook throughout our Commonwealth is very favorable for next Tuesday and I believe we also have a good foundation established for a decisive November victory."

"A historic result is a real potential and you have helped to make it possible. Thanks again. And I look forward to working with you in the years ahead. Sincerely, Harold E. Stassen."

In releasing the text of the telegram, Kravitz said:

"I think Stassen will carry Monroe County. There is a groundswell of popular opinion in favor of his candidacy."

Art Show Opens Doors At YMCA

GLORIA SHAFER Randolph and George B. Johnson open their two-week show today at the YMCA, dealing with the inside view of things.

Mrs. Randolph is concerned with small poetic segments of nature. She gets her effects with bold, free brush strokes, sometimes with oil paint and sometimes with interior enamel house paint, of which some fine examples are her "Portrait of Peter," "Wild Grape Vines" and two flower paintings.

Johnson divides his show into three groups.

His first group deals with satirical statements about children and society, of which an example is "Halloween Parade." His second group is an abstract series in which he is concerned with heavy impasto pigment and a very primitive effect as in his "Portrait of a Soldier."

In his third group, he deals with composition, color and paint quality. Examples of this group are two nude paintings in oil and two strictly academic nude drawings.

Both artists have written statements explaining their work, which will be found at the left of the door.

American Flags To Wave Over Graves Of County Veterans

Project To Begin In Rural Areas

THE AMERICAN Flag will again fly on Memorial Day over the graves of all war veterans buried in Monroe County.

The traditional placing of flags will begin tomorrow under the direction of the graves committee of Stroudsburg Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Assisting will be these American Legion units: East Stroudsburg Post 346; West End Post 327; Evans-Biltz Post 922; Barrett, and Wilson-Fisher Post 413; Pocono Lake, also Monroe County Joint Memorial Committee and Society of the 28th Division, Post 56.

Placing of flags will get under way in the rural cemeteries. Flags will be available to committee members of all rural routes in the county today through Memorial Day at the Veterans Affairs Office, 615 Sarah St., Stroudsburg.

Assistance

Cemeteries in the Stroudsburgs will be decorated Saturday. All veterans are invited to assist in this work, meeting at the VFW Home at 9 a.m. In the event of inclement weather Saturday, the work will be carried out Sunday.

Frank J. Weller, committee chairman, and George J. Straka, VFW commander, said the committee members will do their utmost to place a flag on every veteran's grave in the county, but due to large number of flags to be placed some graves might be overlooked.

Should this occur, they ask the next of kin or a friend of the deceased veteran to notify Weller at the VA Office, phone 2856, or Straka, phone 2278-W.

Philadelphia Realtors Rap Shortway

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Board of Realtors came out yesterday against the proposed Keystone Shortway.

Taking a stand in support of a policy statement issued recently by the Greater Philadelphia Movement, the realtors expressed their sentiments in a letter to Gov. Leader, signed by Alan L. Emmlen, president of the board.

The Greater Philadelphia Movement opposes construction of the Stroudsburg - to - Sharon shortway now on the ground that it would be inimical to the economic welfare of Southeastern Pennsylvania.

The GPM feels also that not until tolltaking is lifted from the turnpike and its tributaries should the building of a shortway be considered. Mayor Richardson Dilworth is one of the prime movers in the GPM.

Stroudsburg Link With Days Of Slavery To Be Sold At Auction

By Don Carlson

A CENTURY-OLD Stroudsburg dwelling that was once a link in the pre-Civil War underground railway, will fall under an auctioneer's gavel in public sale late this month.

Known to many as the Plattenburg estate, the stately, well-shaded frame house stands at a 825 Ann St. address. The owner is 70-year-old Claude Plattenburg, a son of a former owner.

The discovery which labeled it as a stopover in slave transportation occurred more than four decades ago when an attempt was made to enlarge the cellar for heating plant space.

A local contractor, said by area historians to be Elmer Kise, had begun to dismantle the cellar wall on the dwelling's left side. Before the operation had barely got under way, a false cellar was found.

Up to half a dozen slaves could be cramped into the small cubical for hiding during the daylight hours. Entrance was believed gained through "cleverly" laid stones in the wall.

In recalling history of that day, auctioneer and historian Wayne R. Posten related that the slaves—enroute to northern freedom—could only travel in darkness to avoid apprehension.

By night, he estimated, they could move at a rate of 25 or 30 miles from link to link. During the day, they hid in secluded places such as the false cellar of an underground railway participants' home.

One of the reasons for the well-kept secret of the false cellar, Posten said, was the fact that it was constructed in days before cement, walls and similar construction depended upon lime, bone and sand.

Consequently, he noted, the loose stones gave an impressive front of being mortared tightly.

As the slaves were directed into the relatively small space, they learned it would accommodate standees only. Food was passed through the wall after a few stones had been once again removed.

The dwelling was believed constructed nearly 125 years ago by a pioneer family named Palmer, the auctioneer-historian related. At the time of the underground railway operations, it was believed that a Palmer family was owner and occupant.

They were of Quaker faith.

he noted, and among the early settlers. Being Quakers, he added, was basis enough for becoming a link in the railway. "They were people of peace who didn't believe in slavery."

Historically, he remarked, the home was purchased about 67 years ago by the mother of the present owner. She was Mrs. Minnie Kent Plattenburg—one of seven daughters.

Her parents, he continued, were a Rhode Island family—Mr. and Mrs. William Kent—who had migrated to the area above East Stroudsburg known today as the Blue Mountain Camp.

The structure, he added, has always been kept up-to-date. Each step of progress has been noted there in the past. An example, Posten said, was the change from coal-stove heating to furnace and later oil heat.

It is also well-built and sound, he remarked, adding the phrase "preserved." The floor beams are hewed 30 to 40-foot logs. In addition to the house, the auctioneer's gavel will also toll the sale of highly prized antiques. Among the valuable items to be sold, he said, is some early cut glass articles.

Date of sale of "the old homestead" is Saturday, May 31.

Girl Guards Celebrating Anniversary

THIS week the Girl Guards of The Salvation Army will celebrate 42 years of guarding in the United States.

The first troop to be inaugurated in the U.S. was in Carnegie Hall, New York City on May 21, 1916 by General Evangeline Booth (daughter of William Booth, Founder of The Salvation Army).

Girl Guards and Sunbeams began their Anniversary Week Celebration with their Divine Service at the local citadel last night. Mrs. Captain Charles Drummond, leader of the groups conducted the service.

The Sunbeams repeated their pledge and recited in unison the Twenty Third Psalm. The Girl Guards repeated their pledge and presented a dramatized song and reading entitled, "The Man With The Lamp."

Others participating in the service were Captain Charles Drummond, Girl Guard Instructors Mrs. Harold Van Why and Lucy Counterman, and Sunbeam Instructors Shirley Counterman and Patricia Van Why.

Wednesday Tea

Other anniversary activities include a Mother and Daughter Tea on Wednesday. Mrs. Senior Major L. K. Pickering, Divisional Guard and Sunbeam Director will be the special guest and will present badges that have been earned by the Guards and Sunbeams. A short program will also be presented by the girls.

On Thursday afternoon, the girls will visit the Daily Record for and educational tour. The anniversary week will be climaxed by a picnic at East Stroudsburg Playground on Saturday morning.

The Sunbeams (girls between the ages of six and 10) meet every Thursday at 4 p.m. The Girl Guards (girls between the ages of 11 and 17) meet on Thursday at 7 p.m.

Stewart Learn, Woodsman For Many Years, Expires

ALL HIS LIFE Stewart Milton Learn was a "woodsman." His father had been a farmer. But young Stewart got interested in chopping down trees when he was just past 15.

He went to work, first, for a nearby sawmill. That was in Jackson Township, Stewart Learn was born there 71 years ago.

There was something about chopping the first wedges of wood from the huge trees in the old forests around Readlers and Tannersville and McMichaels.

There was something satisfying, too, about setting the cross-cut saw in place where the bright slice of the ax had left a hollow for it to cut its way through.

Then there was a kind of simplicity and honor in hearing the long, sharp crack of the bark when the last strong fibers of wood split and the tall, majestic tree crashed to the ground.

Stewart Learn loved his work as a woodsman; everyone knew that.

He married Edna Schuler. They raised a family. At their home at Stroudsburg RD 3 they had their own truck garden and Edna Schuler Learn says "Stewart loved to work in that, too."

But most of all, he loved working in the woods.

Then, in 1933, Stewart was working on a job near Tannersville. He was using a power saw. The old crosscut had been replaced. The new saws got the job done faster, cleaner. Stewart had learned to use them well.

Illness

That day on the job Stewart Learn collapsed. He had suffered a stroke. A doctor ordered him not to work in the woods anymore.

He gave up the job; refused others if they were offered. He recovered from the stroke.

"But he couldn't be satisfied unless he had an ax or a saw in his hand," his wife said. "Around home he started in working with the wood, sawing up logs and the like."

"He shouldn't have done it. He knew that. We all knew it. But you couldn't stop him. 'Last Winter he worked up all his wood for fuel.'"

Three weeks ago, Stewart Learn had another stroke. He was taken to General Hospital. Lumbering had ceased to be a major side industry in Monroe County. And one of its last big woodsmen was dying.

Both Parties Face Battles

ent State Committeeman Forrest R. Smith, Stroudsburg, is unopposed.

Tomorrow morning, when the polls open, Monroe County's 10,987 Democrats and 7,629 Republicans will decide the issues of Schimmel vs. Brislin, Williams vs. Snyder and Praetorius vs. Heller.

Indications are that the voter turnout will be exceptionally high—for a primary election.

There are several reasons for this:

State fights are still an unknown quantity.

Complaints about "machine" politics are running higher than usual.

But most important of all: Because of the sub-surface, round-robin infighting involved in local chairmanship battles, township and borough committeemen and committee-women have been out beating the drums (and the bushes) for their personal "picks."

There have been few times in recent Monroe County history when interest in a local election has been so high.

It may not be "Togetherness." But it's all in the family.

Tuesday Is Election Day

Although we haven't heard an unusually great amount of pre-primary talk, we have a feeling there will be a fairly heavy turnout of voters at the polls tomorrow.

Primary elections in Pennsylvania invariably follow pretty much the same pattern, with organization-backed candidates almost certain to receive the nominations entitling them to compete in the November general election.

This year's primaries are somewhat different, however, in that both Democrats and Republicans have contests going which could conceivably upset organization planning.

Most unpredictable contest of all the statewide offices at stake is the Republican race for governor. Here, the organization candidate is Arthur T. McGonigle, Berks County pretzel manufacturer. He is being opposed by independent Harold Stassen, of Philadelphia, former governor of Minnesota, along with William S. Livengood and Harold J. Vaughan.

On the Democratic side, Pittsburgh Mayor David L. Lawrence is seeking the gubernatorial nomination with the party organization's blessing. His outspoken rival, who broke with the Leader Administration, is Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman, of Greene County. Third man in the race is Edward P. Lavelle, Scranton.

Three men are also candidates for the GOP nomination for U. S. Senator, with Hugh Scott, the organization choice, meeting Weldon B. Heyburn and Harrison A. Moyer.

Gov. George M. Leader, who is ineligible to succeed himself in his present office, is opposed by only one candidate, Clarence P. Bowers, who is running on the Furman slate.

The Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor will go to one of three men—John Morgan Davis, William E. Culbertson or John Francis Davis. John M. Walker and Frank C. Hilton are battling it out for the Republican bid.

For secretary of internal affairs, Genevieve Blatt carries the organization banner against Michael Cannavino and Lucian Ciletti in the Democratic primary. The Republican contest is between Andrew J. Gleason and Albert Pechan.

Chief interest locally — since the candidates for legislative posts are unopposed—is expected to center on separate contests for chairmen of the two political parties.

B. K. Williams, veteran GOP chieftain, is seeking reelection. He is being opposed by the incumbent state committeeman, Gerald A. Snyder.

On the Democratic side, the choice lies between John A. Brislin and John W. Schimmel.

Forrest R. Smith is unopposed for Democratic state committeeman. Two men, however, are seeking the Republican state committee post — Graden Praetorius and Clifford F. Heller.

Without opposition in the primaries and assured of nominations are these candidates: Rep. Francis E. Walter, Democrat, and Luther H. Ackerman, Republican, for Congress; John J. Dobosh, Democrat, and Sen. Bill Scott, Republican, for state senator; Van D. Yetter, Democrat, and Assemblyman Hanford L. Cleveland, Republican, for Legislature.

Some voting districts have close battles shaping up for county committee posts which will help attract a large number of voters to the polls.

Democrats outnumber the Republicans in registrations by a margin of 10,987 to 7,629. Also numbered among the 18,869 voters are 154 non-partisans, 87 independents and two enrolled in "other parties."

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. It's every citizen's duty and privilege to cast a ballot in the American way. Go to the polls—and take someone with you to vote, too.

The Pennsylvania Story

Look At Tomorrow

Harriburg — From the standpoint of registered voters eligible to vote in tomorrow's primary election, several points are worth noting.

Looking at the overall picture, Pennsylvania Republicans have dropped their registered numbers from 2,995,971 four years ago to a current 2,718,179.

This in itself represents a decline of 177,792 in the space of the four-year span.

Pennsylvania Democrats on the other hand have shown a marked upsurge, climbing from their total four years ago of 2,088,857 to a primary election high of 2,451,414.

For "in-office" Democrats this is a four-year upswing of 362,557.

Insofar as tomorrow's balloting is concerned however, neither of these facts are of actual primary importance inasmuch as the May 20 episode is strictly concerned with intra-party contests.

Nevertheless as Pennsylvania's 5,237,211 registered voters (including independents, non-partisans and "others") prepare to head for the polls tomorrow, there are several salient points of particular interest.

On the Democratic side:

Leader Favored

Governor Leader, off to the races this year as a candidate for his party's nod as U.S. senatorial candidate against Clarence E. Bowers is expected to weather the storm in finer fettle than he emerged from his gubernatorial heyday in the primary of 1954.

Four years ago Mr. Leader polled a total of 306,688 votes in the Democratic primary to barely edge Allegheny County Coroner William D. McClelland's 241,226.

That in itself was a close enough shave — but here is another interesting fact: Democrat Roy E. Furman, running at that time as a candidate for Lieutenant-governor, polled more votes than any of the Democratic gubernatorial aspirants for any of the statewide offices — a total of 474,887 votes.

It is the grimly determined Mr. Furman who tomorrow is backing the so-called "organization" choice for governor—Pittsburgh Mayor David L. Lawrence, this year is aligned with Mr. Leader.

In a nutshell — it is doubtful if Mr. Furman will come near approaching the accomplishment tomorrow in his organization — backing gubernatorial bid.

On the Republican side: Voters trotting to the polls tomorrow will find four candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination — organization candidate Arthur T. McGonigle and independents Harold E. Stassen, William S. Livengood, Jr. and Harold J. Vaughan.

A look at what can be expected tomorrow can be gleaned from the GOP primary of 1954.

Four years ago there were three candidates seeking the gubernatorial nomination — organization candidate Lloyd H. Wood (who won the primary but lost to Leader in that year's general election); Thomas S. Stephenson, and Gordon F. Chamberlain.

Genial but television-dreaded Lloyd Wood polled 707,133 votes in the primary, Stephenson, 189,977 and Chamberlain, 65,554. The "split" in votes in this case was not serious, as neither Stephenson nor Chamberlain were regarded as serious contenders.

However it most certainly did show a division of primary votes on election day. The significant point is that this year there are four in the GOP gubernatorial race, at least two of whom are regarded as most serious buckers of the organization McGonigle bandwagon. These two are Stassen and Livengood whose support tomorrow may show a decided split within the GOP.

The Senior Hop

George Sokolsky Says...

Inefficient Producer

Walter C. Furst writes me that he cannot understand "why you propose that the American consumer should subsidize the inefficient American producer. Would it not be in the common interest if we permit these inefficient producers to go out of business and let the excess labor be hired by the more efficient producers who can compete on world markets?"

This is an extremely interesting idea because Mr. Furst does not recognize why the American producer cannot compete price-wise with West German, Japanese or Soviet-made products in world markets.

After all, there was a period when American producers were the most efficient in the world and during two wars, it was the American producer who set a standard of production unequalled in the history of the world. It was the American mill and factory that won World Wars I and II.

It is now evident that the American producer has outpriced himself in world markets and has therefore become non-competitive in many fields, even in the American market. To understand this it is necessary to discover the causes of this price factor.

Walter Reuther has recognized this problem in the automobile industry and has made several proposals which do not seem economically feasible.

The principal cause is high wages which, in their relationship to price, become cumulative from the labor that goes into the gathering of raw materials in mine and farm to the painting of the finished automobile. About 25 per cent of the American labor force is affected directly or indirectly by this one industry and the largest item in its budget is wages and benefits.

Reflect Inflation

Wages reflect not only the American high standard of living but also the inflationary trend which has been continuous since the beginning of the Korean War.

Those commodities which are a product of automatic or even semi-automatic machinery, requiring only the time of the worker but no particular skills, can be produced in one country as well as another, if that country has access to the raw materials or the partially manufactured materials required to make them. A stamping machine can be worked by a coddie as well as by a high school graduate, and actually that is happening all over the world, bringing on an industrial revolution in many so-called backward countries.

What Mr. Furst suggests by implication is that the lower standard of living countries are more efficient than the higher standard of living countries because they can produce identical items at lower costs.

A second factor in this situation is taxation which is an item of cost. All forms of taxation, individual and corporate, come out of earnings and so are a factor in wages and salaries. Therefore, countries where lower taxes need to be paid may have a price advantage over countries where higher wages are paid. This particularly gives an advantage to those countries which have enjoyed American economic or military aid, thus relieving the producing personnel of those countries of part of the cost of operations and by that means putting them in a better position than their American competitors who have to pay the high wages and high taxes.

The third factor in efficiency is the relationship of depreciation reserves to the value of currency of a country. It is absolutely impossible for old plant and equipment to produce as efficiently as new plant and equipment. In many instances, European, Asian and South American plant and equipment are, in effect, gifts from the United States and are more modern than the competing American plant and equipment. In a word, we cut our own throats competitively in world markets.

Replacements are a question of taxation. When a depreciation reserve requires 1939 costs to pay for 1958 costs, the penalty upon the American producer is about two and one-half times and therefore makes him non-competitive, particularly with those countries that benefited by our generosity, as, for instance, Soviet Russia did to the tune of $11,000,000,000 through Lend-Lease.

What Mr. Furst is thinking about is the classical free market which is the ideal of all capitalist philosophers and which exists nowhere on the face of the Earth today. This might have been a better world if the free market did operate, but that is impossible in an era in which socialism, in one form or another, prevails in so many countries.

There are numerous ways of fighting for your country. Vice President Nixon fought by retaining his dignity in the face of outrageous indignities. The agony and humiliation experienced by the Vice President has only one worthwhile consequence. It undoubtedly helped arouse complacent Americans to the inroads Communists have made in Latin-America. If Nixon's nightmare doesn't jolt this nation into facing the grim facts, then Americans must assuredly will someday wake up to discover that a nightmare is a reality. The choice is quite simple: Wake up or give up!

People who have worked closely with the Vice President are constantly amazed by his ability to maintain his composure under tense circumstances. Political attacks and rock-throwers have not made him lose his temper. His Girl Friday has noted, however, that he always gets

Robert S. Allen Reports...

Nixon's Trip A Calculated Risk

Washington—Vice President Nixon's violence-spattered trip to South America was a deliberate "calculated risk."

Both he and the State Department were fully warned that disturbances might develop. Intelligence and diplomatic sources had advised well in advance that Nixon would encounter unfriendly demonstrations.

But after careful consideration it was decided his tour could not be cancelled or his itinerary changed, for three reasons:

(1) Fear of offending the governments that had invited the Vice President and Mrs. Nixon; (2) under-estimation of the extent and nature of the hostility that was so turbulently displayed against them; (3) misjudging of the ability or willingness of local security forces to provide adequate protection, particularly in Venezuela.

These significant facts were disclosed by Secretary Dulles at an hour-long meeting with senior members of the Senate Relations Committee. He personally asked Senator Theodore Green (D., R. I.), chairman, to arrange this private session.

The State Department chief also revealed two unannounced decisions which are guiding U. S. policy in the sinister Lebanon crisis:

Armed forces will be landed in that Middle East country to protect American lives and property.

This war-breeding situation will be placed before the United Nations if it is definitely established that the United Arab Republic is behind the attempt to overthrow the pro-Western Lebanese government.

During Dulles' unannounced Foreign Relations Committee discussion, he was questioned particularly about the President's dispatch of paratroopers to the Caribbean.

Despite sharp grilling, Dulles would not express an opinion on that.

Attending this meeting were Senators J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), John Sparkman (D., Ala.), Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.), Wayne Morse (D., Ore.), and William Knowland (R., Calif.).

What they said—While declining to comment on the President's troop action, Dulles did tell the senators that he "did not recommend it."

"Then why did the President do that?" asked Senator Sparkman.

"He was worried about the lives of the Vice President and Mrs. Nixon," explained Dulles. "The President made his decision to send troops after receiving information that the Nixons were not being fully protected by Venezuelan authorities. That information came direct from our embassy in Caracas."

"You say you did not recommend the dispatch of troops," said Senator Green. "Did you disapprove of that?"

"Once a decision is made by the President," replied Dulles, "I believe in standing behind it."

"That isn't what the chairman asked you," declared Senator Morse. "You did not answer his question. Do you or do you not approve of the President's action in sending troops to the Caribbean area?"

"I will stand on my previous answer," said Dulles.

"How do you stand on handling Latin American dictators?" continued Morse. "Doesn't that go to the heart of this deplorable matter? Hasn't it been this Administration's policy to treat dictators the same, and in some instances, even better than the democratic leaders of South American countries?"

Dulles vigorously denied that.

"We have shown no favoritism of any kind," he declared. "We have consistently followed the policy of not intervening in the affairs of any South American country, whether we like its government or not. We take the position that it is not the business of this country to tell other people how they should be ruled or by whom."

Senator Fulbright was sharply critical of the decision to let Vice President Nixon and his wife go to South America "if you knew things were going to be so bad down there."

"We thought local security forces would be able to handle anything that developed," explained Dulles. "Our reports from diplomatic and intelligence sources were fully considered before the Nixons departed. The State Department was informed they would probably run into some booing and jeering. I've encountered some of that myself, but I've never been in danger, and no crowd has ever gotten out of hand."

Senator Humphrey asked how the itinerary was arranged in view of the warnings of possible disturbances.

"It just sort of grew," explained Dulles. "After it became known that Argentina had invited the Vice President to attend the inauguration ceremonies there, other Latin American ambassadors wanted him to visit their countries. We just could not turn them down under the circumstances, nor could we afford to revise his itinerary."

"In other words you took a deliberate chance," said Humphrey. "A calculated risk that nothing serious would happen."

"We had no idea these crowds would become so unruly as to threaten the lives of the Vice President and his wife," admitted Dulles. "We erred there, and we misjudged the ability or willingness of local security forces to provide the necessary protection, especially Venezuela. It shouldn't have happened, but it did."

Secretary Dulles stressed that it is not the intention of the Administration to invoke the Eisenhower Doctrine in the Lebanon crisis.

"What about evidence that these riots are being instigated by the United Arab Republic to overthrow the pro-Western Lebanese government?" asked Senator Fulbright.

"There is some evidence that groups of Syrians are entering Lebanon and are participating in the rioting and lawlessness," replied Dulles. "But still there is not sufficient evidence that the UAR is actively endeavoring to destroy President Chamoun's government."

"If it becomes clear that this is happening," continued Fulbright, "what does the Administration intend to do about it?"

"Take it to the United Nations for concerted action there," said Dulles.

May Big Month For Ostroms

Last week it was my pleasure to receive a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Merle Ostrom. They used to live on Bridge St. in Stroudsburg.

Merle will always be remembered as the first general manager in the history of The Daily Record.

The Ostroms now live at 2004 Yale Ave., Bayshore Gardens, Bradenton, Fla.

Merle, who is now on the retired list, and Mrs. Ostrom left Monroe County one year ago. To be exact, the date was May 11, 1957. They have been deeply missed ever since.

The Ostroms were married 46 years last Thursday, May 13. This is the same date they moved into their new home last year.

Many Monroe County folks vacationing in Florida have visited with the Ostroms during the past 12 months.

Everyone here sends a cheerful greeting and best wishes for the future to a fine couple.

Cliff Fansen, one of Monroe County's best known residents, writes from Florida that everything's fine down there.

Cliff is one of a group attending an insurance conference in Miami Beach.

Some guys have all the luck.

Carl Kohl, owner of the new Colonial Lanes, is receiving congratulations from all angles for his new bowling establishment.

It is being spoken of as one of the finest of its kind in the United States.

The new bowling establishment is just off Route 611 in Arlington Heights.

Pete Westbrook, son of "Bobby" Westbrook, Daily Record woman's page editor, is currently recovering from a case of measles.

He upset a carefully planned weekend by being confined to the Penn State infirmary last Friday.

Pete's a sophomore at Penn State. He is also a graduate of Stroudsburg High School.

Roderick "Mac" MacLeod, Daily Record photographer, returns to the General Hospital on Wednesday of this week.

"Mac" faces some more surgery.

Bob Bixler may put eye glasses on sale in his hardware store in the future, if a certain customer hangs around often enough.

Bob pointed out the item to be purchased, not once, but three times, and still the customer couldn't see it.

I wonder who the customer was? Only one guess please.

Good Evening Ladies!

He Learned About Hens

By Ken Duval

When I read in a nearby village newspaper that a professor of psychology was scheduled to speak on the topic "Chick, Chick—What Do You Know About Chick?", I somehow got the notion that this was something in my own field. So, I hurried out to the Grange Hall, which was quite a long trip.

Well, it turned out that the professor was an animal psychologist as well as human, and what he had to talk about was hens. So that the evening wouldn't be a complete loss, I took notes, and I must say I learned a lot of things about hens that I never suspected.

Hens, said the professor, are sensitive creatures and very female in their psyches. Not one farmer in a hundred knows how to treat a hen and keep her happy, so she'll always do her best. For example, rushing into a henhouse and tossing them out of their nests just to get their eggs, speaking harshly and generally hanging around the place is all wrong. Always, he said, knock gently before entering, tiptoe, and speak softly to each one in turn.

This made sense to me and, honestly, if I owned hens I wouldn't think of barging in on them. It might well be that hens have more modesty than people give them credit for.

This business of dashing into the henhouse every time a hen cackles and grabbing her egg before she has a chance to admire it should stop. Much better, I think, after hearing the professor, would be to knock gently, tiptoe in and say, "Pardon, Madam." While she scurried about tidying up, the farmer could quietly filch the egg.

A Barnyard Parable

Hens produce better if permitted to lead relaxed lives, the professor said, and I gathered that they like nothing better than to slip into something loose and sit around gassing with one another, even though they know they look a fright. No doubt on these occasions they love to let their back feathers down and talk pretty frankly about life and barnyard novels like "Peyton Place." I don't suppose many farmers ever give this a thought.

If these girls are engaged in the egg business for the inter-ferable, or table, trade they probably are loaded with inhibitions and inclined to be nervous, jumpy and, perhaps, on occasion, a little weepy. It costs a farmer nothing to be loving and gentle with them, addressing them as Sweet-heart or Baby and even giving them an affectionate pat once in a while.

I do hope I have rendered a service to my many, many, rural readers in elucidating this subject, and that my urban readers will bear with me just for today. I'd just as soon not hear from the professor, if he happens to read this; and, for that matter, I'd just as soon not hear from any farmers.

Abigail Van Buren

House With Love In It

Dear Abby: I am a teen-aged boy who likes a teen-aged girl. I live with my gr and parents, whom I love because my parents are both dead. My grand-mother keeps telling me to bring my boy friend home and not to meet him on a street corner, but I meet him on the corner anyway because I am ashamed of the house I live in. It is old and shabby and not in a very nice part of town. I think he would like to meet my grandparents, but I haven't got the nerve to ask him over. Help me, Abby!

ANNA

Dear Anna: You need never be ashamed of a home that has love in it... no matter where it is, or how plainly furnished, if he is a nice boy, it won't matter to him, either. Invite him.

Dear Abby: That letter from the lady who said after fifteen years of baking rhubarb pies her husband suddenly blew his top and declared he never liked them, hit close to home. My husband pulled the same trick on me with chocolate cake. I cured him in a hurry when I very politely turned the cake upside down on his head and told him he either eats what I put in front of him or goes hungry. We've been married 24 years, so I guess it worked!

CHOCOLATE CAKE BAKER

Dear Baker: I don't recommend this to the average wife, but if this worked with you, your husband sure does "take the cake." Lady.

Dear Abby: This fellow I go with is considered a jerk by everybody including me. He brags, is conceited, and I have caught him in many lies. But I can't get him out of my mind. He is going into boot training and tells me if I want to write to him okay—but not to expect any letters from him. I am considered a very good looking girl and could have many other dates but I still prefer this luncheon. What should I do?

TINA

Dear Tina: Give this guy the boot before he goes into boot training.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

Expresses Gratitude

Dear Editor:

I would deeply appreciate your publishing the following letter, if at all possible.

Recently five members of this unit were detailed to participate in the "Tobyhanna Days" observances in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

When the detail returned to home station, the men were so enthused about the fine reception rendered them that they insisted that some sort of tribute be accorded the residents of the Twin-Cities area, and this letter therefore is intended as an expression of gratitude on behalf of the officers and men of 109th Infantry Tank Company.

In addition to the highly complimentary spirit and cooperation of the citizens and businessmen of the Twin Cities, a note of thanks is extended to the East Stroudsburg American Legion Post, and to MSGT Vincent Marek, the National Guard technician assigned to your local armory who arranged for billeting and dining facilities for the men.

A special note of gratitude is forwarded to Mr. and Mrs. Wade Armstrong, operators of the Red Top Cafe, 59 Crystal St., East Stroudsburg, and to Mr. Steve Morkem, proprietor of Steve's Market, located on Ninth St., in Stroudsburg, who together so graciously provided, prepared and served the tempting meals provided the men.

It is indeed a pleasure to write a letter of this nature, and I wish once again to compliment and thank the citizenry of your area.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

You can, I suppose, fish the proverbial fly out of the proverbial ointment and use the stuff without shuddering. You can even fish a fly out of the cream pitcher, if it happens to be the last cream you have in the house, but it's a little harder to use the cream without a squeamish feeling.

Which is about what happened to me on this long-anticipated weekend. I like and learn a lot at newspaper conferences, anyway; but this year there were two additional reasons why I was anxious to go to the one at Penn State: one of my co-workers, Leonard Randolph, was on the program and it would give me a chance to visit my son at the university without seeing the doting parent.

To make matters quite perfect, the weather cleared, the sun shone the birds sang; and at exactly 2:30 on Friday afternoon my son broke out with measles.

Well, the sun still shone, the dogwood bloomed, the newspaper people were all gathered and singing their praises of Randy's part in the panel; I won an award and I got elected to an office; and all I could do the whole weekend was lie mentally in sympathy with the measles, isolated from the world in general and me in particular, in the university hospital.

Oh, I'll admit I had the grace to be ashamed of myself, particularly after coming up against the example of Rebecca Groom. Many of us have reason to remember Rebecca. Already an outstanding newspaper woman, as well as a high-ranking officer of the University Women, she had been scheduled to speak to our local AAUW branch. Just before she was to Children of the first grade of come, she was injured in an

First-Graders Entertain Mothers

The J. M. Hill School, East Stroudsburg, baked the cupcakes which were served at a tea on Friday afternoon in honor of their mothers. The children had the cooperation of the Junior High home economics department in their project.

A program of special music was held, and the children presented gifts to their mothers.

But you'd never have guessed it at the conference, where she was not only elected as the first woman president of the Penn. Newspaper Editors' Assn. but was always the center of an interested group, was up with the dawn, in time for every conference, and stayed up as late as anybody and even had more fun.

So it was pretty small of me to be obsessed with a case of measles, when they weren't even my own measles.

Shawnee-on-Delaware — The historic Shawnee Presbyterian Church, Shawnee on Delaware, was the scene of the Spring wedding at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, May 3 of Miss Carolyn Ann Burnley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Burnley Sr. of RD 1, East Stroudsburg to Raymond V. Fitzgerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernet R. Fitzgerald of Chipperfield Drive, Stroudsburg.

Rev. Wesley Crowther, the bride's pastor and minister of the Shawnee Presbyterian Church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Robert Kranendonk sang "Thru The Years" and "Because" also "The Lord's Prayer" as the bridal couple knelt before the altar. He was accompanied by Mrs. Marie LaBar, church organist, who also presided at the console with a background of soft wedding music during the nuptial service.

The chancel area was set with candelabra graced with bouquets of pink snapdragons, bridal wreath, bluebell and white spirea arranged by Mrs. Sterling Walter.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin bodice fashioned with a Sabrina neckline and long sleeves pointed over her wrists. Her bouffant skirt was of reembridged tulle over a floor length — skirt of satin. Her finger-tip veil was draped from a crown of sequins and pearls. We were having a cup of coffee in the lounge the other morning, and I asked Betty LaBarre what was new in the jewelry department that might be mentioned in the column.

"We have GOBS of white jewelry," she said. "Just gobs."

"So many gobs we'd better get gabby?" I suggested.

"That's right," Betty agreed. But don't think it won't sell anyway... it will. It's really lovely. The beads are particularly nice... some necklaces have four and five strands for only 1.00. And they're really pretty."

For a moment we sipped our coffee, and then Betty expostulated. "You know, there's something else you really should mention—BABY SHOES. For Father's Day. When is Father's Day?"

"Sunday, June 15th," Bob Igler of our hotel supplies department replied.

"That's right... and all Dad needs is a bronzed baby shoe! If anyone gave me one I'd shoot them," I said.

"Don't say that," Betty mourned. "I think they're lovely... and so do thousands of other people. Both men and women. It takes several weeks to send them away and have them dipped in bronze, so now would be just about the time orders should be placed." Betty bit into a roll, and after a few thoughtful minutes observed, "I just can't imagine ANYONE who wouldn't want a baby shoe preserved in bronze. Parents... grandparents... why they're wonderful sentimental gifts! Have you seen the picture frames with the baby shoe at the base?"

"And a picture of Marilyn Monroe behind the glass" quipped one of the men. "Yeah, they're real nice. She's sure some baby."

Betty blushed. "Oh, come now... it's a picture of the baby who wore the shoe! They also make book-ends of the shoes... ash trays..."

"Cuspidors?" Bob Igler demanded.

"Of course not," Betty said. "But lots of really beautiful things. We even dip some shoes and leave them unmounted..."

"These would hold bobby pins for Mother," I suggested helpfully.

"Or you might use one as a cuspidor... if you were a midget," Bob persisted.

"Well anyway, I still think they're a very thoughtful and special gift for anyone who has ever had a child," Betty insisted, and all of us had to admit that we had been kidding, and agreed with her.

Prices range from 4.95 to 15.00 and, as Betty said, several weeks must be allowed for the bronzing of the shoes, which are preserved perfectly in all their precious beauty right down to the last tiny wrinkle made by a child's foot.

If Dad isn't the sentimental type, you might choose cuff links or tie clasps, or folding clothes brushes, or even a pill box for him. These too you find in the jewelry department. But chances are he's as sentimental as Mother and Grandma. Women haven't any corner on the more delicate emotions—they only THINK they do! And the men, doggone 'em, have played along with the idea to save their own blushing faces!

Major Signals Of Danger Weapons Against Cancer

THE importance of keeping alert to the danger signals which can spell cancer, was emphasized yesterday by Dr. M. J. Leitner, president of the Monroe County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, as he released the mid-year reports on the local unit's activities.

"In comparing current figures with those of a year ago," the unit official said, "we find greater numbers of dressings have been distributed and that the distribution of education literature has increased tremendously."

Across the state, he related, nearly 2,000 patients have used 980,070 dressings since September 1, last year. This, he noted, was compared with a year ago figures 1,820 patients and 859,105 dressings.

"According to Mrs. Kenneth Eshback, service chairman," he continued, "we have distributed 17,698 dressings to 27 patients. This is an increase of 4,472 dressings since last year at this time."

Important Phrases
One of the important phrases of the American Cancer Society's education program is the availability and distribution of free literature about cancer, Dr. Leitner reported.

"An increase in distribution of approximately 110,000 pieces of educational literature throughout the state since last year at this time indicates the growing program of the Society," he continued.

"I should like to take this opportunity," he concluded, "to thank every Monroe County resident who has supported the American Cancer Society's program in the past; I should like also, to urge those who, for any reason, have not contributed to the 1958 Crusade to do so at the earliest possible date."

The county unit has a goal of $8,150 for the current drive. Crusade Chairman is Daniel G. Warner.

Police said Mrs. Lasso would be cited for reckless driving. Both cars were reported demolished.

Five Escape Injury In Accident

KRESGEVILLE — Five persons apparently escaped injury early last night when the cars in which they were riding were in collision on U. S. Route 209 near the local postoffice, state police reported.

Investigating troopers of the Lehigh Barracks identified the two drivers as Wilmer Hoffman, 18, of Kresgeville, and John R. Kepke, 27, of Lehigh RD 1.

Passengers
Passengers in the latter car were Kepko's wife, Delores; his son, John, Jr.; and a neighbor, identified as Arthur Rubart of Lehigh RD 1.

According to state police, the car driven by Hoffman entered the highway from the Kresgeville Postoffice into the path of the eastbound Kepko vehicle.

Troopers said the youth told them he had looked in the direction of the oncoming eastbound car prior to entering the highway. He will be cited, they said, for failure to give right-of-way.

Damage to the car driven by Hoffman was estimated at $500, and damage to the Kepko vehicle was estimated at $400.

Governor Of District
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. — H. George Eber of York, Pa., assumed office yesterday as governor of second district, Optimal International. The district covers New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

H. G. Sanborn, Jr.

I AM FOR SNYDER for Republican County Chairman

Mr. Williams knows why for I have told him, and I have also told all his close associates.

Now is the time for me to inform all Republicans and publicly give some of the reasons:—

1. Mr. Williams told me he would not again be a candidate if his judgeship candidate in the Fall 1957 campaign was successful.
2. His candidate was elected, and responsible Republicans then got Mr. Snyder as a candidate for the County Chairmanship in this primary.
3. Mr. Williams reneged and refused to consider Snyder in any way for party work.

I will vote for Snyder because:

Snyder is young, active and enthusiastic—which is what our party needs.

He can attract other young and active men and women, whose future is before them, to our side.

He can increase registration and attract tomorrow's leaders into our party.

He will accept advice from older hands, but not dictation.

He will delegate authority for prompt decisions.

He will give all Republicans a courteous hearing.

He will protect job opportunities for Republicans.

He will tie closely to our state organization for the benefit of Monroe County.

JUST VOTE FOR

GRADEN PRAETORIUS for STATE COMMITTEEMAN

GERALD A. SNYDER for COUNTY CHAIRMAN

For two weeks the Good Deal platform supported two candidates has been published in the local papers for all to read. It's a good platform for everybody.

Not until Saturday, May 17—four days before election day—did their opponents, Heller and Williams, have anything to say in the public press. Even then they didn't say much—no policy statement—no party platform—just nothing except that they are successful in their personal businesses.

No one denies their successes, but let us not forget that personal success in personal business is for personal gain. Whereas:

Praetorius and Snyder are publicly pledged to support the Republican Party—more than 7000 people in Monroe County—for the general good of all, according to their published platform.

When you vote for Praetorius and Snyder you vote for A GOOD DEAL!

Semproch, Sanford Help Phillies Trip Bucs Twice

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Behind the righthanded pitching of rookie Ray Semproch and Jack Sanford, the Philadelphia Phillies swept a doubleheader Sunday from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-4, 4-2.

The Phillies extended their victory string to four games as they reversed the action of last week-end. The Pirates tripped the Phillies twice last Sunday to complete a four-game sweep of their series at Pittsburgh.

The Pirates, a half game out of first place a week ago, lost their fifth straight before 19,068 fans.

Semproch allowed the Pirates six hits to win his fourth game, against three defeats in the second game, Sanford needed the relief help of Dick Farrell in the first game.

Leads Titack

First baseman Harry Anderson led the Phillies 13-hit attack in the second game against four Pittsburgh pitchers. He collected a home run and two singles to drive in three runs.

Willie Jones, of the Phillies, homered in the second play hitting a double and making several slick plays at third base.

Phillies outfielders Chuck Essegian and Rip Repulski belted home runs in the first game. They were matched by Pittsburgh's Dick Groat and Frank Thomas, 12th, in the first game. The Pirates runs in the second game were scored on R. C. Smith's fifth homer and Bob Skinner's second.

Tim Tam Seen Heading For 3rd Title

By JOHN CHANDLER
BALTIMORE (AP)—The Calumet Farm's Tim Tam, having sailed stowed away the Preakness on top of his Kentucky Derby victory, is expected to head for New York in a couple of days and attempt to become the ninth colt in racing history to win the triple crown.

By winning the $100,000-added Belmont Stakes June 7, Tim Tam would become the first horse in 10 years to make the Derby-Preakness-Belmont grand slam for 3-year-olds. The last to accomplish it was Citation, the great Calumet star of 1948.

Tim Tam, who whipped the Sunny Blue Farm's Lincoln Road in the Preakness at Pimlico Saturday, may not have much opposition at Belmont Park.

Was Good Looking?

Silky was a sensation to look at, and if pretty horses made champions, the West Coast slowpoke would have won hands down. However, everyone has now had their fun, and it's about time to get down to business and decide the 3-year-old title.

Tim Tam, a handsome dark bay son of Tom Fool-Two Lea, by Bull Lea, has won eight straight races. His bankbook shows deposits of $44,565, and there's plenty more to come in the months ahead.

Trainer Jimmy Jones will return to Baltimore on Tuesday from the farm at Lexington, Ky., to decide on his next move.

They were betting around the Pimlico stable area Sunday morning that Tim Tam would head straight for Belmont Park for the next big one.

Has Long Face

Vic Sovinsky, who trains Lincoln Road for Isaac Blumberg, of Chicago, still had a long face.

"Two and a half lengths has cost us $300,000," said Sovinsky. He referred to the Florida and Kentucky derbies, where Lincoln Road led until near the finish, only to be beaten a half-length each time by Tim Tam. In the Preakness, Tim Tam caught Lincoln Road about an eighth of a mile out and romped home by a length and a half.

Second money in the Kentucky Derby was $25,000, in both the Preakness and Florida Derby, it was $20,000.

Olympic Posts Softball Win

OLYMPIC Athletic Service scored an 8-2 victory over Hoffman's Texaco in a Monroe Softball League game at East Stroudsburg playground yesterday.

Al Raughley hurled the victory, limiting Hoffman's to five hits. Dale Metzger was tagged with the loss, giving up 14 safeties.

Matiskella and Quick with three hits each led Olympic at the plate.

The linescore:
Olympic 300 014 0—8
Hoffman's 110 000 0—2

Batteries: Raughley and Matiskella, Olympic; Metzger and Cramer, Hoffman's.

Gernert Bats Boston Past Orioles, 8-4

BOSTON (AP)—Dick Gernert crashed a pair of towering homers and Jackie Jensen contributed a tremendous three-run blast yesterday in leading the Boston Red Sox to an 8-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Gernert belted his fourth homer of the year with two out in the fourth and then hit his fifth with Ted Williams on base in the sixth. The big first baseman also drove in the first Boston run with a pop double to right in the opening inning.

Jensen picked out a "Billy Loe" fast ball and drove it some 450 feet off the wall behind the centerfield bleachers for three more runs in the first. It was his eighth homer of the season and boosted his RBI total to 23.

Jensen also connected for three straight singles after his circuit belt before being retired in the eighth on a sparkling play by shortstop Willie Miranda.

Aided by the slugging of Gernert and Jensen, Boston right-hander Frank Sullivan staggered to his first victory in two decisions. Sullivan gave up 14 hits before giving way to Leo Kiley with one out in the ninth.

Balt. 000 110 101—4 14 1
Boston 400 102 10x—8 12 1

Loes, Lehman (6), Moeller (8) and Trandoss; Sullivan, Kiley (9) and Berberet. W-Sullivan, L-Loes.

Stroudsburg Resident Makes Arrangements For Art Show

JOHN D. Dreisbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Dreisbach of 21 S. Eighth St., Stroudsburg, has arranged Muhlenberg College's first student art show.

There are 35 entries, done in various mediums — water color, oil, pen-and-ink, ceramic clay and fingerpainting. Religious art predominates.

The students in expressing their feelings in graphic form have used anything at hand. For example, some of the more original entries are painted on laundry cardheads and one, the most extreme case, on a sheet of newspaper.

None of the artists has had formal training.

Three prizes are awarded on a "best of show" basis.

First prize was awarded to Phillip N. Jurus of Hazelton for a pastel, entitled "Fides Super Scientism;" second, to Alma S. Perlis of Allentown for an oil, entitled, "Lunch for Tuesdays;" and third to John F. Habern of Egypt for a ceramic, entitled, "Trololus and Cryalida."

Honorable mention was given to Dreisbach's ceramic, "Orante."

Dreisbach graduated from Allentown High School and is preparing for the ministry.

His college activities include choir, track, wrestling, Inter-collegiate Conference on Government, Muhlenberg Christian Assn., DeMolay, Commuters' Club and Pre-Thee Club.
